Democrats Switch To Farm Bill Such As Ike Suggested

WASHINGTON (AP)—House Democrats, in a fast change of pace, today switched their affections from short-lived new farm subsidy proposals to a two-billion-dollar farm bill patterned after President Eisenhower's suggestions.

Less than 24 hours after proposing it, Democratic farm leaders in the House Thursday night dumped plans to press for "compensatory payments" to farmers in the form of cash subsidies intended to bring farm prices to the level of 90 per cent of parity.

In its stead, they put forward plans to present a compromise farm bill containing Eisenhower's soil bank program and other non-controversial provisions of the catch-all measure vetoed two weeks ago by the President.

The switch, latest in a series of confused maneuvers, came after Republican farm belt members and many Democratic House members turned a cold shoulder on cash subsidy payments to farmers.

Rep. Cooley (D-NC) said the decision was reached in consideration of Republican predictions of another presidential veto. However, Rep. Poage (D-Tex.) said he planned to carry the fight to the floor of the House anyway.

Poage was the original sponsor of the subsidy proposal, which called for cash subsidies equal to the difference between current price supports and 90 per cent of parity. Parity is a price determined under farm law to be fair to farmers in relation to their costs.

Cooley, meanwhile, prepared a bill for Agriculture Committee consideration Monday wrapping up a number of features of the vetoed farm bill, including the President's $1,200,000,000 soil bank.

It would authorize another bill.

Voting Starts On Road Bill

Passage Seen For 51½ Billion Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)—Voting starts in the House today on the final shape of a 51½-billion-dollar national road construction program designed to be self-financing.

Both Republicans and Democrats predicted it would pass.

Opposition that appeared in the first day of floor discussion on the measure Thursday dealt primarily with two side issues—wage regulation and utility line relocation costs.

A compromise was reported reached on the utility facilities so as to allow the states to follow their traditional practice on reimbursing utility lines for moving their poles and lines along road rights of way.

Minimum Wage Fight

A fight loomed on the provision to allow the secretary of labor to set minimum wages for workers on the proposed interstate system.

The bill would provide for 51½ billion dollars in federal and state roadbuilding over the next 13 years. It includes 27½ billions for a 40,000-mile system of interstate superhighways. The federal government would pay 90 per cent of its cost, the states the rest.

The federal government also would step up its regular aid to states for roads.

Carries Tax Increases

The measure carries tax increases with it—$14,000,000,000 in new and increased taxes for road users over a 16-year period. These, with road taxes already collected, supposedly will be ample to pay for the new program.

Rep. Boggs (D-La.), author of the tax provisions, said he knew of no opposition to them.

Boggs told the House Thursday has been estimated the increases would cost the average motorist an additional $8.83 a year.

"But he will gain about $20 in savings—in insurance, maintenance, less damage, less waste of me."

Russians Claim Reds Desire Ban On Sale of Arms

End Of Shipments To Middle East Okayed If All Nations Agree

LONDON (AP)—Soviet Communist leader Nikita Khrushchev insisted today Moscow would welcome a ban on all shipments of arms to the explosive Middle East—provided other nations were similarly pledged.

At the same time Premier Bulganin announced Prime Minister Eden had accepted an invitation to visit the Soviet Union. Bulganin also made it clear the Russians expected Britain to take the lead in improving Soviet relations with the United States.

Khrushchev and Bulganin spoke at a mass farewell news conference shortly before they started homeward after a 10-day round of conferences with Prime Minister Eden and tour of Britain. They described themselves as well satisfied.

The two leaders agreed to answer only written questions from the 500 newsmen. Many of the questions were hostile in tone, and these Khrushchev took for himself.

Tired, but in obvious good humor, he deftly and jovially juggled words on Soviet intentions in the Middle East, the nuclear arms race, prospects for a top level Soviet visit to the United States and prospects for British-Soviet trade. His performance was watched by millions of Britons on television.

The Soviet Communist party boss asserted Russia does not ship arms to anyone "and we would like there to be no shipments at all." He added:

"I think we would answer

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP)—Patrolman Charles E. Tice will become acting chief of police here May 1 as the aftermath of a grand jury charge of police department inefficiency.

Tice, 29, who has been on the police force since 1950, was named Thursday by Mayor Arnold W. Devon after the mayor demoted Chief John Russell to the rank of lieutenant.

Patrolman Robert Pyle was appointed acting captain to succeed Capt. Chester C. Smith, who was reduced to patrolman along with Lt. George Kidd.

Patrolman Suspended

The mayor suspended patrolman Donald Goodballet for 30 days for "conduct unbecoming a police officer."

Examination will be held within 90 days to fill the positions of chief and captain permanently.

The shakeup followed the indictment April 16 of five suspended patrolmen and two former special officers on charges of burglary. The four affected by the shakeup were not involved in the indictments.

Smith to Retire

Mayor Devon said Smith, a policeman for 33 years, old him he would retire May 1.

Russell, who has had 22 years' police service, has been chief three years. Kidd has been on the force 20 years and Goodballet eight years.

The Columbiana County Grand Jury said Russell lacked the training and ability to head the department and that Smith and Kidd were "inefficient and wholly unfit" for their duties.

Presidential Election Set By Potters

EAST LIVERPOOL — Local unions throughout the nation will ballot May 11 to name a new president for the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

A field of 35 has been nominated for the unexpired term of Frank Hull, who retired in mid-March, but the list may be reduced shortly before balloting. Nominees have until Monday to send official acceptance to union headquarters.

E. L. Wheatley, acting president, announced details of the special election today. The winner will be installed at the international convention at Long Beach, Calif., in July to serve out the balance of Hull's term, which runs to Aug. 1, 1957.

Only two new candidates were added to the list before nominations closed. They are James M. Duffy of East Liverpool, who served 25 years as the union's president before he was defeated by Hull in 1953, and George Fanati, a member of Local 133 at New Castle, Pa.

Duffy was nominated as a member of General Ware Local 33 at East Palestine.

Because of the rules for the election, there is a question of the ex-president's eligibility. He was also nominated for the balloting two years ago, but was ruled out before ballots were printed.

Wheatley who is also a candidate, said ballots will be mailed from union headquarters next Wednesday to secretaries of all local unions.

Depending on when tabulation is made by the canvassing committee, results are expected to be announced either May 18 or 25.

Hull resigned effective March 8, because of failing sight and hearing. He was succeeded by Wheatley as acting president.

Blast Destroys Building, 10 Persons Feared Dead

Nixon To Run Again; Ike Is 'Delighted'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republicans' 1956 ticket was all but wrapped up today. Vice President Nixon said he would run again. President Eisenhower said he was "delighted."

Democrats, expressing no surprise at Nixon's decision, indicated they will direct plenty of fire at him. Many of them have bitterly criticized his campaign tactics in the past.

He seemed likely to shoulder a major portion of the GOP campaigning this year.

Convention a Formality

Barring some health setback for Eisenhower, Nixon's announcement Thursday seemed to leave only formalities for the GOP's August convention in San Francisco.

Sen. Knowland of California, Senate Republican leader, said even the drafting of a platform ought not to present much of a problem. "It will be based on the Eisenhower administration record," he said.

Knowland said Nixon's announcement "clarifies the political atmosphere" so the party now can "close ranks and direct attention to gaining majorities in the Senate and the House."

Nixon's decision was announced after a White House conference with Eisenhower, who relayed his reaction through an aide. Nixon said he relied on his own and associates' judgment of what was best for "the success of the President in his campaign for the continued success of the President's administration in Washington."

Weighed All Factors

He said he delayed announcing a decision because he had to "weigh all the factors involved and reach a decision that would put the primary goal first."

Eisenhower had said March 7 he had asked Nixon to "chart out his own course." A week later Eisenhower said he would be "happy to be on any political ticket" with Nixon.

Nixon's decision was not unexpected, although there had been speculation that he might delay an announcement until summer.

"I do not greet this news with any misery whatever," said Adlai E. Stevenson in Miami, Fla., where he is campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I am not surprised. Mr. Eisenhower has repeatedly stated his admiration for Mr. Nixon. I just think this is another point where he and I disagree."

At Pittsburgh, Sen. Estes Kefauver said Nixon's decision was "a relief."

3-Story Brick Apartment Goes Up In Flames

Four of 15 or 16 Believed In Building Escape With Injuries

PULASKI, Va. (AP)—A restaurant owner lit a match to a gas heater and touched off an explosion and fire today that leveled a three story brick building with the possible loss of 10 lives.

The blast rocked the old business section of this manufacturing town of 9,000 and in a matter of minutes the building was a giant torch. It housed a restaurant, two shops and a Salvation Army transient home on the ground level and seven families lived in upper floor apartments.

Four survivors of the 15 or 16 believed in the building were hospitalized and one unidentified body was recovered. Police Lt. G. E. Boudin said he believed 10 to 12 bodies were in the smoldering ruins. Only the back wall and a small section of the side wall were still standing when firemen finally put down the flames.

Blast Lifted Roof

A witness said the blast lifted the roof and then let it crumple inward.

A National Guard company from the Pulaski-Radford area was ordered on duty to search the ruins. Police Chief Lee E. Boothe said it probably would be mid-afternoon before the charred ruins could be examined carefully.

W. J. Mahaffey, the restaurant operator, said he was met with a roaring explosion when he struck a match to the gas heater at about 6 a.m. Mahaffey, a man in his 70's was hospitalized with undetermined injuries.

All police departments and fire departments in this area about 60 miles southwest of Roanoke were called to the scene.

Slid Down Pipe

Mahaffey's wife, who lived with him in an apartment upstairs, escaped from the building by sliding down a drain pipe. The original explosion blew off the back stairs to the apartment.

Injured in the blast were: Mrs. Nora Davis, 59, burned extensively and suffered multiple fractures. Mahaffey, in serious condition. Norma Jean Mabe, 12, fractured pelvis.

Eugene Welch, around 55, possible internal injuries. Joseph M. Lytton, who was waiting for a ride to work and leaning against the building, suffered a fractured arm.

A second non-occupant, Jordan Oliver, was walking past on his way to work and hurled into the street by the force of the explosion. He was treated and released.

There was some doubt also whether George Morris and Arnold Woodyard were in the building at the time of the explosion. Believed still in the building were Mrs. Minnie Akers; Mrs. George Morris; Mrs. Arnold Woodyard and a son, age and name undetermined; Mrs. Eugene Welch and two sons, Garland, 16, and Victor, 12.

2 Wellsville Men Fined On Contributing Count

LISBON — James Davidson, 19, and Angelo Ciammi, 20, of Wellsville were each given a 15-day sentence in the county jail for contributing to the delinquency of a 17-year-old youth, also of Wellsville after a hearing in Juvenile Court Thursday morning.

Judge Louis Tobin fined the youth $25 and gave him a five-day sentence in the juvenile detention room at the county jail. He also suspended Davidson's driver's license for 60 days.

Large Stone Crushes Girl, 19, To Death

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—A 19-year-old girl was crushed to death Thursday night by a large stone knocked by lightning from the top of an 11-story building.

The stone from the cornice of the First National Bank Building crashed through the top of an automobile driven by A. F. Stivers, manager of the Springfield store of Montgomery Ward & Co.

Stivers escaped injury, but his daughter, Sandra, was pinned to the seat and killed.

Lightning struck the building during an electrical storm which lasted about five minutes.

Ohio Youth Electrocutated At Florida Yacht Basin

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—James Barnett, 20, of Middletown, Ohio, was electrocuted when he stepped on a charged metal weather strip at the Lighthouse Yacht Basin Thursday.

Barnett, who was visiting here with three other youths, had been water skiing in Lake Placid. Deputy Sheriff Roy Longbottom said Barnett, dripping wet and barefoot, started to enter an unlocked utility room. An extension cord passing beneath the weather stripping had become worn. Barnett stepped on it and collapsed, his legs folded across the strip. A companion tried to pull him off and received a shock.

Business-Baiting Again?

Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver have been baiting business in their desperate search for some issue that will set the hustings afire. They may or may not have success in starting a blaze. But both have risked a charge of moral failure by resorting to a tactic in their quest for votes which is unworthy of would-be presidential candidates.

Their moral failure lies in bearing false witness to their own knowledge when they resort to business-baiting. They are trying to warm over the hot emotions of the class warfare carried on at the expense of the enterprise system by the original New Dealers.

This is particularly unworthy of Gov. Stevenson. It suggests that his high character as a public figure has been corrupted by political circumstances beyond his personal control. He has shown the same kind of corruption in his intemperate remarks about agricultural problems. He has been saying what he hopes will be popular, at the expense of saying what he knows to be true.

Gov. Stevenson knows business-baiting is as un-American as labor-baiting, race-baiting, or religion-baiting.

He knows the Eisenhower administration has used business-trained and business-minded executive talent for the benefit of the country, not for the narrow benefit of the business community.

He knows that to bear false witness against himself by saying the opposite to win a round of applause when speaking before a convention of unionists who might make or break his bid for the Democrats' presidential nomination is unworthy of his reputation for high-minded public service.

Perhaps Gov. Stevenson thinks he has to fight fire with fire as a calculated risk of politics. If so, he has done himself no good. The American people in 1956, with a total of 70 million jobs in reach, are not likely to put confidence in business-baiters.

Leadership Equation

Before President Eisenhower made up his mind to run for a second term, it was our opinion the health issue alone might scare him off.

His opponents would hammer on it at the expense of the real issues in the presidential election. It would be the only talking point they would have, and the result would be a distorted campaign.

These fears are being confirmed.

President Eisenhower's opponents are going for the jugular. They are going to hold the President's heart attack against him every time he amuses himself on the golf course, every time he leaves Washington, every time he does anything that could be construed as relaxation.

Even Adlai Stevenson has gone for the jugular. President Eisenhower's modification of the man-killing presidential grind is going to be point of major attack, he promises.

Distasteful as it is going to be to offset this kind of attack, there is an obvious counter-attack.

Dwight Eisenhower serving less than 24 hours a day on the presidential grind is as good a bargain as any of his potential replacements serving full time.

In a real showdown on the presidential equation, it seems probably most Americans would rather have President Eisenhower half time than his challengers full time, because they would get more leadership for their votes, their confidence and their money.

Statistical Inquiry

It has occurred simultaneously to many commentators that government has been overestimating the farm bloc as a source of political pressure.

The same thought may have been occurring to members of Congress while they marched uphill and back down again over a farm bill they had no stomach for repassing over President Eisenhower's veto.

The course of the misgiving about the farm bloc's strength is the steadily shrinking proportion of the rural population of the United States. In 1920, when the population was 160 million, about 49 per cent of it was rural. By 1930, only 16 per cent of the population was rural, out of a population of nearly 152 million. In 1955, out of a population of more than 165 million, only 13 per cent was rural.

If the rural population in 1955 amounted to less than 22 million, with a cash income from farming of $29,630,000,000, per capita farm income stood at a little more than $1,300.

Per capita farm income in 1920 was a little more than $200. This was admittedly low. But in 1950, when farm income was considered to be high, the per capita figure was a little better than $1,100, not as high as it was in 1955.

It is standard practice to declare that farm income is declining, without acknowledging any decline in farm population. Why?

Nehru's Red Face

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Khrushchev's Missile Boast Seen Embarrassing

making criticisms of his own government, must feel uncomfortable as he reads what Khrushchev has just said to the British people:

"I am quite sure that we will have a guided missile with a hydrogen bomb that can fall anywhere in the world."

The Soviet leader also claims that the Soviet Union was the first nation to explode a hydrogen bomb from an airplane, he adds:

"The Americans are only intending to do so because their previous explosion was not of a hydrogen bomb but of a hydrogen installation."

Yet the Soviet government is protesting against the forthcoming tests of hydrogen bombs to be held by the United States at the Marshall Islands in the Pacific. Mr. Nehru is also against these tests.

THE MAIN BURDEN of the Nehru speeches has been that the United States emphasizes military power and military alliances. Mr. Reuther echoed that criticism when he told audiences in India recently:

"Like many Americans, I have felt that United States foreign policy in Asia has placed undue emphasis upon military power, military pacts and military alliances. This overemphasis on military power has, in my opinion, tended to trade reliable democratic friends for the 'doubtful military allies.' But it is significant that the line taken by the labor chief has been repeated in a general way by Adlai Stevenson, who came out openly last week against the holding of H-bomb tests by the United States."

WITHOUT MENTIONING Mr. Stevenson, President Eisenhower at his press conference made this significant point about the proposed ban on H-bomb tests:

"It is a little bit of a paradox to urge that we work just as hard as we know how on the guided missile and that we stop all research on the hydrogen bomb, because one without the other is rather useless. . . . So I think research without test is perfectly useless, a waste of money."

The President was referring, of course, to the speeches of Mr. Stevenson and other Democrats complaining that the administration isn't pushing hard enough on the development of guided missiles. But, if the testing of hydrogen bombs is to be frowned upon, then, says the President, there's not much sense to the talk about stepping up the guided - missile program.

SUCH INCONSISTENCIES are apparent also in the arguments made by those who keep on saying that America is "losing the cold war" or is not sufficiently alert to the opinions of Asian peoples.

The United States is not pressing its military program for purposes of aggression but of defense. When the argument is made that America should put less "emphasis" on military alliances, it really means that this country is being asked to abandon those alliances. This is the objective of the Soviet propaganda about alliances and overseas bases. It has been going on for some time now.

What is patently spurious is the Soviet demand for the stopping of H-bomb tests when Khrushchev now contends that the United States hasn't been testing any hydrogen bomb but only an "installation." It would appear to be time for the Soviet spokesmen to take account of what their propagandists for a ban on all H-bomb tests have been saying.

AGAIN, IT'S A CASE of an attempt by the Soviets to disarm the United States and its allies — to frighten the West by threatening bigger and bigger bombs and demanding that, unless trade advantages are given, the military threats will multiply.

The news dispatches do seem to bear out the theory that military weapons are still a talking point of the Russian leaders and that apparently only Americans must reduce armament, abandon bomb tests and keep from debating military matters in Congress.

That's what the Soviet spokesmen apparently want done, and some Americans abroad seem to think it's the way to "win Asia," though it could come to mean "losing America."

Touch And Go

By TRUMAN TWILL

This will tell some nosy psychiatrist more than he has any right to know, but here are some things that rate high in my sense of touch:

Baby chickens before they sprout feathers, new footballs, plastic steering wheels after they have been cleaned with wax, the soft inside of a well groomed hound's ears, the cold wetness of a dog's nose;

The keys of a battered typewriter that has had the stiffness beaten out of it, the glassy finish of a hickory handle on a pitchfork, newspaper still damp from the press, all articles made of stainless steel;

Freshly - cleaned ball-bearings, the surface of a butch haircut of a thickly-haired - over head, the earth when it finally has been warmed by May sunshine, ice cubes, the skin of a chilled apple, the barrel of a properly designed pen;

A cluster of elderberries before they turn purple, the waxed finish of an automobile, the kind of crinkled glass used in old-fashioned bathroom windows, a fresh square of soap before it has been wet;

Vellum paper with embossed lettering, the petals of roses, the flank of a freshly - curried horse, clean sheets on a bed that has not been slept in, chilly water lapping on a sandy beach, the rough shell of a clam;

The fuzz on a new baby's head, the tar puddles kids used to wade in with bare feet when summer sunshine boiled out a brick pavement, the mud that bordered the swimming hole back in Memory Lane;

The resinous surface of pine boards run through a planer in a lumber mill, the sackfuls of money I used to tote to the bank on Saturday night when I clerked in a clothing store;

Pebble leather in a pair of shoes, suede jackets, dry cement still hot from the kiln, cabbage heads being harvested before frost on a September evening, new baseballs whose covers have not been roughened;

The warm bowl of a briar pipe, a coil of hemp rope, the sponge-rubber grips on bicycle handlebars, polished ax handles, glass ash trays, flat stones suitable for skipping over the surface of water;

Dew-dampened grass before the sun comes up, chenille bathrobes, a shower spray that is neither too hot nor too cold, too weak or too strong, saddle leather that has been cleaned often with saddle soap;

Brass doorknobs, the fluff towels in good hotels, the walnut stocks of guns, kitten fur, the binding of expensive books, the squishy nothingness of a featherbed, the abrasive surface of crisp toast;

Chilled olives, buckeyes, the horns of a cow, the springy ends of a peacock's tail feather, the businesslike handles of a set of wire-cutters, the ferns that used to grow on the north side of most small - town houses, a piece of chalk fresh from the box;

The inside of a new suite of fleece - lined underwear, a blast of air from a hot-air register, the breath-taking dash of cold alcohol that precedes a rubdown, the suffusing glow of a counter-irritant rubbed on a sore leg for a charley horse and that stuff called money when it is fresh and crisp.

There are about 20,000 units in a dragonfly's compound eye.

The news invites letters from readers on all important current subjects. The letters should be brief, not to exceed 200 words and must bear the signature and address of the writer to insure publication. Letters with anonymous signatures will not be published.

Poor Old Red Joe

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

When I read the "Pravda" editorial on the abolition of the cult of the individual, my heart went out to poor old Red Joe, who is being made to have been a bum by those whom he exalted to power. Joe Stalin is dead and a nobody can kick a dead dog around because the dog cannot bite anymore.

"Pravda," is this very long article which was designed to brainwash Communists the world over and did, says Stalin:

"The cult of the individual and the practice of leadership which developed under its influence in the last period of J.V. Stalin's life and work did much harm. His disregard of the standards of party life and the principle of collective Party leadership, his request personal decisions on questions led to a distortion of the party principles and Party democracy, violation of revolutionary law, and unjustified repressions."

HOW TRUE all this is, but when did "Pravda" make the discovery? Only after Stalin died and Berea was killed. As long as Stalin was alive, "Pravda" sang his praises, calling him the greatest philosopher, the greatest military genius, the greatest architect, the greatest educator of all time. Now, he is apparently the biggest bum that ever hit the paradise of the proletariat.

Maybe the "Pravda" article summarizes in more refined language what Khrushchev said in the rough. For instance: "The cult of the individual has also done much harm in ideological work. I we take works on philosophy, political economy, history and other social sciences, written under the influence of the cult of the individual, we see that many of them represent a collection of quotations from works by J. V. Stalin and his glorification. "One of the striking manifestations of the cult of the individual is the 'Short Biography' of J.V. Stalin, edited with his direct participation. The 'History of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, Bolshevik — Short Course' is also in many respects permeated with the cult of the individual."

THERE WAS a time when every Communist and those who wished to be intelligent on the subject, or appear to be, had to read the "History of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, Bolshevik — Short Course." Millions of copies of it were printed in all languages. Now we are told that it was an utterly lousy book, representing the cult of the individual. Those who live in Communist countries will undoubtedly burn the book, lest they be accused of being Stalinists, which is now a sin.

The book-burners will be busy going through their libraries, but I shall keep my copy because those who eventually murder Khrushchev and Bulganin may turn out to be Stalinists and they may go back to the old book. Who can tell?

THE "PRAVDA" editorial makes another point that is worthy of interest:

"... Wartime films and works of literature and arts, for instance, do not yet correctly depict the role of the Communist party and the Soviet government, our army, and people in the great patriotic war who rendered epochmaking services in defending our homeland and saving all mankind from the imminent threat of fascist enslavement."

In our backward, capitalistic country, Hollywood has not yet done justice to the American Revolution much less World War II. We do not use motion pictures to wash our brains or to mold our opinions. Hollywood makes them for the purpose of earning money, and we look at them usually because we have nothing else to do at that particular moment. It serves to pass the time while we eat popcorn in the dark.

OF COURSE, we do not suffer from the cult of the individual because we believe God is in Heaven and that most men do as well as they can considering all the impediments to perfection. It was Russia that took a simple, pocket-marked, short fellow and turned him into an ikon.

When I met Stalin in 1917-18, he was an unimportant little guy, way down the line, who seemed pleased if anybody paid attention to him. Two or three years later, he was a big shot and within a decade he was a god on earth.

No man could have contrived to do so without assistance. And his assistants are those who are now making a bum out of him — now that he is dead.

The U.S. Vs. The UAW

By RAYMOND MOLEY

The Supreme Court has agreed to hear an appeal of a case brought last year by the Department of Justice against the United Automobile Workers for violation of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act. The indictment, which was dismissed by Federal Judge Frank A. Picard, charged a violation of the law by a television show sponsored by the UAW in which Democratic candidates were supported during the 1954 campaign.

For a long time the UAW has spent very large sums in programs on radio and television which are called "news" and "educational" activities. The moderator of the television show to which the government objected also has conducted a radio program called "Labor Views the News." This program is on the air twice every day at times designed to hit workers going to work in the morning and at home during or after dinner. It blankets a large part of the state of Michigan.

The suit followed charges by John Feikens, Michigan Republican chairman, that dues contributed by workers to the union were used to promote political objectives and candidates to whom workers might be opposed. In short, that a Republican worker was compelled under penalty of losing his job to pay for programs which opposed the very principles, parties, and candidates that he preferred.

An additional point made by Mr. Feikens was that these dues thus used for political propaganda were tax exempt.

The statute under which the government's suit was brought provides that it shall be unlawful for "any labor organization to make a contribution or expenditure in connection with any election at which various specified candidates" are to be voted for.

Judge Picard, appointed in 1939 by President Roosevelt, ruled that the "expenditure" on television time was not prohibited by the statute. In doing so he cited several cases in which the courts have held that special distribution of union publications, the purchase of newspaper space and the like were not prohibited by the statute in question.

He severely criticized the law itself, saying that "until the Supreme Court enlightens us further" he had no alternative but to follow the decisions in other cases.

The UAW has claimed, as have other labor organizations, that the law is unconstitutional, but Judge Picard avoided a commitment on that score. Presumably the Supreme Court will meet that issue.

The decision of the Supreme Court to review the case will have no direct effect upon the expenditures planned by the various labor organizations in the campaign this year, because the case will not be heard until the next term of the Court, which begins in October.

The law's delay in this case means that millions in union funds will flow into the coming campaign. The sums involved have been reliably estimated at between 10 million and 15 million dollars.

Meanwhile, Republicans in the Senate, recognizing the weakness in the statutes now on the books, will press for new legislation. But in the present political temper of Congress such remedial legislation has small chance of passage.

So They Say

If we can get the soil bank to work as it should, the (farm) price support level can be lowered within two or three years. — Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.)

We are nearer to but farther from an agreement than we have at times been previously, and all because some people do not wish to part with their atomic weapons. — Russia's Andrei Gromyko on East-West arms cuts.

I am not an elder statesman. I hate elder statesmen. I am a Democrat and a live politician and proud of it. — Former President Harry S. Truman.

Once Over

A Bad Day For Kids

Millions of ten-year-old kids throughout the land are having it tough all this week as pop and mom greet them after school with, "Where do you expect to get in life? Here you are going on eleven and you don't know how cotton futures closed today or why the annual U. S. Steel meeting is held in Hotoken!"

It's all an after-effect of a quiz show on which Leonard Ross, a fabulous moppet, took down $100,000 as a scintillating authority on the stock market. Having a kid around the house who can't tell you that Rhodesian Selective Trust and Niagara Shares Corporation were two stocks admitted to bit board listing last year can be humiliating. (We understand a lot of parents are thinking of taking Junior out of grammar school and sending him to the SEC.)

OF COURSE THERE ARE skeptics who hint darkly that the ten-year-old boy is really twenty and was split two for one for the lower rating. This is ridiculous. The kid simply represents merger of American Boy (Common) with Juvenile Mental Concentration (Preferred), Prerequisite Wisdom Consolidated and Golden Opportunity Debentures.

His knowledge of the financial world is amazing. He will go far. But we can't help wondering about the effect on parents of such a lad. How does his mother feel when he looks up from his homework and asks, "Mommer, I think I'm all straight on Regulations T and U in the trade credit laws, but would you check and tell me if I'm in error?"

What's a father's reaction when he asks Junior "Why don't you run out and play baseball with the other kids?" and gets the answer, "I was supposed to pitch, but I've got to study the early incorporation papers of AT&T, name the first directors and give the dividend rate between 1911 and 1926?"

How does the old man feel when he is raving over the Yankees and Red Sox fight in the presence of a child who is engrossed in the historic battle between Jay Gould and Jim Fisk?

WE WOULD LIKE TO HAVE a psychiatrist's opinion on the Ross boy. Would he say that he was hit by a bundle of Wall Street Journals as an infant, or that a Christmas toy had come wrapped up in the Dow-Jones averages?

Is it possible that the ups and downs as reflected in "Rock-a-Bye Baby" gave him a market complex? Could it be that the child was left at times with a baby-sitter who secretly played the stock market, always showed up with the closing prices and read them aloud?

The quiz show big money results get more and more puzzling. For example, a jockey, Billy Pearson, won $64,000 as an authority on great art, and not as a result of riding "picture horses."

A grandmother has won a fortune as a baseball expert. As a mere newspaperman we are thinking of trying for a few hundred grand as an authority on Arzie Pottery and Fish Culture in the Old Erie Canal. That way lies fortune.

IT MUST BE an embarrassing moment when Margaret asks Clifton, "Have you ever watched TV and what programs did you like?"

The Soviet chiefs had tea with Queen Elizabeth at Windsor. . . . Iced tea? Anyhow perhaps it was possible to get a straight answer from the Russians on "One lump or two?" B & K presented the royal family with a Cossack cavalry horse and a pony. . . . "Heigh ho Silver-kovitch!"

Jimmy Durante dug far back for that sketch about the trusting husband and the double-crossing wife.

Khrushchev and Bulganin are reported determined to make a visit to America. . . . Evidently want to be sure their act "Sawing Stalin in Half" gets world bookings.

The Kremlin press is now giving the bum's rush to the late Andrei Vishinsky which it kept in U.N. exhorting the free world, throwing everything but the kitchen sink at Uncle Sam, and blocking peace in Korea. . . . This establishes a new slow motion record for the "Excuse it, please" routine.

Hiss Speaks At Princeton

Convicted Perjuror Defends Yalta Talks

PRINCETON, N. J. (AP) — Alger Hiss spoke on the heavily guarded Princeton University campus Thursday night in a calm anti-climax to weeks of fanfare.

It was his first public speech since his release from prison.

Protests against the heralded appearance of the convicted perjurer before a student debating society had led to rumors of possible demonstrations.

But all was peaceful. After speaking on foreign policy, Hiss slipped out a back door of the meeting hall to avoid a waiting crowd and returned to his New York City home.

Hiss, whose role at the Yalta conference has been in bitter contention for years, told the students that "we got what we asked for in terms of technical concessions."

He also said, "I don't happen to believe that Yalta was such a pernicious occasion."

A query from a student during a question period led to the reference to the 1945 Yalta conference among the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the then British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and the late Russian Premier Joseph Stalin.

Hiss, then a high-ranking State Department official, was an adviser to Roosevelt at Yalta.

Five years later — in 1950 — he was convicted in New York City on perjury charges for denying before a federal grand jury that he passed out State Department secrets for a Soviet spy ring. He served almost four years in a federal penitentiary.

Hiss was well received Thursday night by members of the American Whig-Closophic Society who had invited him to address them.

They laughed at his quietly phrased jokes, and burst into applause frequently during his speech.

Hiss seemed to enjoy the experience. He spoke effortlessly, and appeared as relaxed as a professor delivering a routine lecture. The students made no reference to his trial and conviction during the question period.

University officials told reporters earlier that they "deplored" the invitation to Hiss, and they took elaborate precautions to avoid any incidents.

Before dark, the campus was closed to automobiles, and more than 40 campus police, proctors, and volunteers joined with Princeton town police to guard the routes to the hall.

Hiss' speech was restrained, wholly unexciting.

He called it the "meaning of Geneva," and used last summer's conference among the heads of the United States, Britain, France and Russia to illustrate what he said are the two most significant developments in the world situation today. They are, he said:

1. "Disarmament is more practicable now than ever in history" because weapons have become so terrible.

2. Since Geneva, the smaller powers have been vigorously asserting their independence. "Their views are being heard."

Then came a 15-minute question period, and very quickly there were questions about the Yalta conference.

A student described the meeting

as "the unfortunate settlement at Yalta."

A ripple of laughter ran through the crowd. Hiss, leaning coolly on the lectern, grinned broadly. He said that this was a "have-you-stopped-beating-your-wife question." The laughter now became loud applause.

"But I'll try to answer it," he said. "I don't happen to believe Yalta was such a pernicious occasion." The difficulty at Yalta, he continued, was that "there was a false assumption that good will was likely to prevail."

Another student asked if the United States had not "surrendered a diplomatic position of advantage at Yalta."

"I don't think we did," Hiss answered. "I don't think we gave up anything at Yalta that was ours to give up. "We got what we asked for in terms of technical concessions."

The society president, Bruce D. Bringgold, finally ended the questioning. He turned to Hiss and thanked him.

Hiss replied: "And I want to thank you and the members of this society for the courteous reception you have given me."

The students rose, applauding, as he was escorted from the hall.

Burglary Reported At East Rochester

LISBON — The sheriff's office reported a breaking and entering at the W. B. Harsh & Sons Feed Co. at East Rochester which was entered sometime Wednesday morning.

Deputy Sheriff James Miller reports that thieves knocked out a panel in the back door to reach the latch. Items missing are three flashlights, 14 flashlight batteries, 18 boxes of .22 caliber rifle shells, six pocket knives, a hammer, and 36 cents.

ENTERS NOT GUILTY PLEA

LISBON — Clyde Scovel, formerly of East Liverpool, who was returned from Campton, Ky. on a secret indictment by the January grand jury, entered a plea of not guilty on a charge of non-support of two minor children when arraigned before Judge Jole H. Sharp Wednesday.

Judge Sharp appointed a Lisbon attorney as his counsel, and Scovel was returned to the county jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Miss Phyllis Mumford Becomes Bride Of Paul G. Althouse

In a double ring ceremony performed by Rev. Lloyd C. Zoller, Miss Phyllis Jane Mumford became the bride of Paul G. Althouse of Columbus April 14 in the Tipton Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Harold M. Mumford of RD 1, Tipton City and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Althouse of RD 3, Salem.

The bride wore a gown of nylon tulle over white satin. The bodice was fitted with chevron pleats following the V-neckline outlined with lace. The sleeves were short and puffed and the bouffant skirt of tulle was enhanced with rose medallions and ended in a gentle sweep.

A two-tiered fingertip veil of illusion was caught to the bride's Juliet cap of illusion lattice work edged with pleated tulle and trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a white orchid surrounded by white roses and stephanotis.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Mrs. Clarence J. Cunningham. Other attendants, all sisters of the bride, were Sandra Mumford, maid of honor; Linda and Carol Mumford, junior bridesmaids; and Beverly Mumford, flower girl.

They wore waltz-length gowns of white organdy over white chiffon taffeta, fashioned along princess lines with V-necklines and short cap sleeves. The hiplines dipped to a point in the back, and the necklines were accented with Venice lace. Their headpieces were white bands with veils.

The attendants carried cascade bouquets of deep pink carnations, except for the flower girl, who had a nosegay arrangement of miniature light pink carnations.

Best man for his brother-in-law was Dr. T. Floyd Stanley of Akron. Ushers were Jay Althouse, brother of the bridegroom, and Gene and James Mumford, brothers of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Mumford wore a blue crepe dress with navy accessories. Mrs. Althouse appeared in a blue print dress with pink accessories. Both wore orchid corsages.

A reception for 150 guests was held immediately after the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother. A three-tiered wedding cake topped with a bride and bridegroom figurine and a bouquet of white snapdragons and mums enhanced the bride's table.

Those attending from Salem were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Starbuck, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Schaefer, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Starbuck, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moser and Carol Berger.

The bride and her husband were graduated from Bethel High School and Salem High School, respectively. Both are graduates of Ohio State University, where Mr. Althouse is employed in the meat laboratories.

The couple are now residing at 284 13th Ave., Columbus, following their honeymoon trip through the south.

Mrs. A. C. Althouse was among the guests at a bridal luncheon given in honor of Miss Mumford by her aunts in Dayton on the day of the wedding.

fauser, who also seeks the Democratic nomination, said he thinks the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket "is as strong as the Republicans could put up but I feel certain the Democrats will win in November."

Sen. Knowland said in an interview the 43-year-old Nixon is likely to bear the brunt of the campaigning, but he said he thinks it "would be helpful for the President to get out in the country."

GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall has indicated Nixon will be called upon to do the "barnstorming" Eisenhower said he wouldn't undertake. Nixon filled such a role in the 1954 congressional campaign and angered Democrats by what many of them said were insinuations they were soft toward communism.

United America Day Plans Are Completed

Plans have been completed for the observance of Wednesday, June 13 as United America Day during Salem's week-long sesquicentennial celebration.

The day has been set aside to demonstrate that in Salem, as in the rest of the country, people can follow their beliefs and work and mingle with fellow citizens in harmony and freedom regardless of race or creed, C. Robert Conroy, chairman, said.

A full day of activities is planned by the committee headed by Conroy, and the following members: Michael Schuller, co-chairman; Edwin Probert, parades; William Holsinger, Saxon Club; Nick Buta, Romanian Social Leui; George Sobona, American Slovak Club; Dorio D'Onofrio, Italian Club; Charles Huddleston, Negroes; Max Gard, Elks Club; Ross Joseph, unions.

The largest of the four parades planned for the week will be held on this occasion. The parade will start at 6 p.m. from Centennial Park and move down E. State St.

It will consist of floats, bands and marching units entered by the granges, industry and patriotic and nationality groups. Many old cars and horse drawn equipment will be of interest to viewers.

In conjunction with the city's sesqui observance, the local Romanian Club is celebrating its 50th anniversary in Salem and planning many events during the week.

All other nationality and patriotic groups that would like to participate in the United America Day celebration, either by an activity during the day or placing a float, musical or marching group in the parade, should contact Conroy at once or attend the next committee meeting, Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the sesqui headquarters, 140 Penn St.

Rep. Hope of Kansas, senior Republican on the Agriculture Committee, termed it a "fair compromise."

But Hope and other GOP House leaders said they would insist also on authority for advance soil bank payments as requested by Eisenhower. This would make available up to 500 million dollars to farmers this year.

Cooley's announcement that the cash subsidy plan had been abandoned came after a long conference with Hope. The Kansas' refusal to go along with it was regarded as the influencing factor in the Democratic decision.

Ohio State Put On One-Year Probation By Big 10

Cannot Play In Next Rose Bowl

20 Gridders Ruled Temporarily Ineligible

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Buffeted by the biggest prestige blow in its history—a one-year probation by the Big Ten for violations of the sports code—Ohio State University started today to put its athletic house in order.

Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, Western Conference commissioner, announced the penalty Thursday in Chicago after a long and intensive probe.

The edict eliminated the Bucks from all chance at next season's Rose Bowl bid, should they win an unprecedented third straight conference football crown; ordered Coach Woody Hayes to comply with the rules regarding financial aid to athletes; insisted that the university supervise the work program of athletes diligently; and declared some 20 gridders temporarily and theoretically ineligible. The players involved were not named.

Michigan State is the only other school ever placed on probation in the Big Ten. That was in 1953.

Ohio State officials, while deploring the severity of the penalty, did not plead innocent.

Athletic Director Dick Larkins said, "We have had a long and thorough investigation by the Big Ten. We have no appeal. We do not deny technical guilt and we have been penalized."

President Howard Bevis observed, "We will accept the judgment of the commissioner and abide by it. Any violations of the rules of which we have been guilty will be stopped. We mean to live within the rules."

Coach Hayes said: "Commissioner Wilson's decision comes as a terrible shock to all of us. All my life I have been taught to respect properly delegated authority, and for this reason I do not believe we should appeal the decision. This, however, does not infer that I agree with the severity of the penalty, nor the manner in which the investigation was made."

Hayes was the principal target of Wilson's statement. The commissioner said:

"Football Coach Woodrow Hayes has acknowledged assistance to unnamed members of the Ohio State football squads from his personal funds in amounts which are said to total approximately $400 annually over a period of five years."

The statement also said Hayes had refused to name the beneficiaries of the assistance. Wilson states his investigation is continuing because of "Mr. Hayes' refusal to provide an accounting of this assistance."

Tribe Thumps A's 14-2; Carrasquel Gets 7 RBI

DETROIT (AP)—The Cleveland Indians carried their first two-game winning string of the season into Briggs Stadium today after demonstrating in Kansas City that they could couple good pitching with slugging after all.

The Tribe thumped the Athletics 14-2 Thursday with Early Wynn hurling a four-hitter and shortstop Chico Carrasquel driving home seven runs and scoring three others himself.

Chico had a grand slam home run in the third inning and cleared loaded bases in the fifth with a double. Carrasquel's home run was off loser Lou Kretlow.

Bob Avila knocked in the last four runs of the game with a single in the seventh and a home run with two on in the ninth.

Gene Woodling, Vic Wertz and Al Rosen also contributed two hits each to the 12-hit Cleveland attack.

Wertz has been on base 16 out of 20 times up and has 11 hits in his last 15 times at bat. He singled and doubled his first two times up Thursday then spoiled his six-game streak somewhat by going out the last three times at bat.

Harry Simpson, first Athletic up against Wynn in the second inning, homered over the left field fence for the first hit off Wynn, and Hector Lopez got a wasted single later in the same inning. The other two, Kansas City hits were in the fourth, which started with Enos Slaughter's double and produced a run when Simpson singled and Wynn threw wild to first after recovering the ball which had bounced off his leg.

Mike Garcia was to pitch for the Indians today against Ned Garver, and Manager Al Lopez planned to use Bob Lemon and Herb Score against the Tigers' Billy Hoelt and Frank Lary on Saturday and Sunday.

Kluszewski didn't quite go along with the "out of shape" verdict. He didn't have much to say about the benching but declared he believed some warm weather would solve his problem of ineffective hitting and fielding.

Kluszewski currently is hitting only .278 and batted in only three runs.

Redlegs Bench Ted Kluszewski

CINCINNATI (AP)—Muscular Ted Kluszewski, who has hit 40 or more home runs and batted in more than 100 tallies in each of the last three seasons, is due to be just another bench warmer tonight when his Cincinnati Redlegs open a long home stand against the Chicago Cubs.

Redleg Manager Birdie Tebbets, striving to pull his team out of a dismal season-opening slump, said Thursday night he would bench Kluszewski because the big slugger "has permitted himself to get out of shape."

Tebbetts said Kluszewski, at 248, is 8 to 10 pounds over his best playing weight. He said George Crowe, obtained recently from the Milwaukee Braves, would take Klus's place in the Redleg lineup.

Kluszewski didn't quite go along with the "out of shape" verdict. He didn't have much to say about the benching but declared he believed some warm weather would solve his problem of ineffective hitting and fielding.

Kluszewski currently is hitting only .278 and batted in only three runs.

Many New Cars To Be At Canfield

Canfield Speedway is set for its new car opener Saturday night and it promises to be virtually a race of 1956 model cars. In spite of the rain last week, 34 cars were on hand, so Saturday Manager Charlie Findlay expects from 45 to 50 to be here.

Of these at least 25 will be brand new models. Fords dominate as there are 16 of them signed in Chevrolets, Plymouths, Pontiacs, Dodges, Oldsmobiles, Mercurys and Buicks.

Racing fans are still talking about the sensational Jack Harrison of Indianapolis. Harrison entered the MARC field late in the season last year, making eight starts. In those eight new car races, he won five, had two seconds and a fifth. He had two seconds at Canfield during the 1955 racing season, trailing Jimmy Romine and Mike Klapak.

Harrison set a new world's record of 22.03 for a half-mile lap last week. Here at Canfield, Findlay has offered a $100 purse to anyone who breaks the Canfield track record. At present Klapak holds the record, 18.29, for the quarter-mile oval.

Supervision Seen Needed In Boxing

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—There are "lots of rotten people in boxing and no public supervision to speak of" in California, investigating attorney James Cox said today after the close of public hearings in a nine-month probe.

"I think the criminal element could be put out of boxing," he said, "if you bring regulations up to normal California standards in state government."

Cox said the investigating committee hopes to make its report and recommendations to Gov. Goodwin J. Knight by June 1.

The investigation began last July and included 17 days of public hearings in Los Angeles and Oakland.

Witnesses told of fixed fights, ex-convicts licensed in the boxing business, referees convicted of felonies, influence of gamblers and criminals, undercover pay-offs which Cox called "stealing from the boxers," self-appointed local czars who at times "called the tune" for state athletic commissioners, and open violations of boxing regulations.

Gene Littler Heads Field Of Champions

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Defending champion Gene Littler headed a field of 22 select golfers today after shooting a first round two-under par 70 over the windswept Desert Inn Country Club course in the Tournament of Champions.

Littler, playing in winds that reached 40 miles an hour, finished Thursday with a two-stroke lead over Shelley Mayfield, Doug Ford and Ted Kroll in the $37,500 tourney.

The scores of three National Open champions soared on the wind-blown course.

Cary Middlecoff, who seldom shoots above 75, took a 79. Lloyd Mangrum had a 75 and Jack Fleck, the current U. S. Open champ carded an 82 to trail the field.

Every player in the tourney, offering a $10,000 first prize, had to be the winner of a major open to qualify.

Isaac Logart Favored Over Joe Miceli Tonight

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Cuba's Isaac Logart, who has punched and danced his way to third ranking among welterweights, is rated a 2-1 favorite over Joe Miceli in their scheduled 10-round fight tonight.

Both Logart and the ninth-ranked Miceli are expected to weigh about 147 pounds for the nationally broadcast and telecast (10 p.m. EST, NBC) scrap.

Boxing Commission Members Suspended

CINCINNATI (AP)—Here is a new twist.

Usually it's a boxing commission that hands out suspensions and probations.

But Thursday Cincinnati City Manager C. A. Harrell placed two members of the Cincinnati Boxing and Wrestling Commission on probation for three months. And what's more, he directed City Safety Director Orrie Hamilton to sit in on all boxing commission meetings for the next three months to see that commission members Al Bechtold and George Murphy behave themselves.

The boxing commission is a part of the safety department.

Harrell said he would wait for three months before reappointing either Bechtold or Murphy to see if they stop their "bickering" in commission meetings.

Harrell said he had been twitted about the city's efforts to close a local burlesque show and allowing a "burlesque" to continue in boxing commission meetings.

"This is a childish way to handle a problem, but this is the way it's going to be," Harrell said.

Murphy, the commission secretary, and Bechtold have been in disagreement over commission policies for some time. Murphy has accused Bechtold of being the aggressor in their arguments and Bechtold has claimed all the trouble stems from his insistence on strict enforcement of commission rules.

Indians Gain Full Game On Yankees

By JOE REICHLER
The Associated Press

If poor old Early Wynn can manage to remain miserable through September, who knows, he may never lose a game this year.

It seems the worse he feels the better he pitches. At least that's the way it's been in his first two starts this season.

A week ago he read, that Cleveland was considering trading him to Chicago. That saddened the 36-year-old right-hander.

"It's an awful thing to pitch for a team which you feel no longer wants you," he said gloomily.

He was so depressed he went out and held Detroit to five hits in the Indians' 3-1 victory.

He refused to be consoled despite denials by Cleveland General Manager Hank Greenberg. "Where there's smoke, there's fire," he said bitterly.

With a heavy heart he took the mound against Kansas City Thursday and turned in a four-hitter winning 14-2.

The Indians picked up a full game on the defending champion New York Yankees, who were beaten by the Orioles 7-5 in Baltimore. The rest of the American League schedule as well as the entire National League card was wiped out because of rain and cold weather.

Wynn had to share the spotlight with a teammate, Chico Carrasquel. The Venezuelan shortstop enjoyed a banner afternoon at the plate, driving in seven runs with a home run and double. His four-bagger came in the third inning with the bases full. His double also came with the bases jammed, in the fifth. The first blow was hit off Lou Kretlow, the starter and loser. The second blast was hit off Jack Crimian.

The Indians amassed a dozen hits off four Kansas City hurlers, including a home run by Bobby Avila and doubles by Vic Wertz and Gene Woodling.

The Orioles overcame a 4-0 lead piled up by the Yankees in the first inning. They pecked away at Tommy Byrne for single runs in the first and second, knocking out the veteran southpaw in the second. After the Yankees had boosted their lead to 5-2 in the top of the sixth, the Orioles really teed off on relievers Tom Morgan and Bob Grim, driving the two right-handers off the mound with a five-run explosion.

There was no more scoring thanks to an effective relief job by George Zuverink. The right-hander relieved starter Jim Wilson in the top of the seventh and retired the Yankees in order, except for Bill Skowron reaching base in the eighth on an error by Fred Marsh.

Gus Triandos and Billy Gardner hit home runs for Baltimore.

George Zuverink, Orioles' Blanked the Yankees without a hit in a perfect three-inning relief chore to preserve Baltimore's 13 lead over New York.

Discipline Problem

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (U. S. — One of the most important duties a parent faces is the infliction of discipline on one's offspring.

All my life I have been a rebel against the idea of conformity. I have never wanted to be like anyone else. I have always wanted to be only myself — and after many years I'm not sure I've found the goal. I know, better than any critic, that I have yet to become the one I'd like to be.

Well, late in life but young in heart, my wife and I went to a department store to buy a gargle and a toothbrush, and — you know how those department store people get confused.

Instead of what we really ordered, they sent a crying baby, wearing a pure milk diaper, to our address. Rather than say Macey's was wrong, rather than criticize Gimbel's, we took the girl. We named her Tracy Ann, and she is still the only thing after more than 18 years of marriage that a department store delivered which my wife has taken without checking on the exchange possibilities.

Our only investment in her has been love, and we feel no need of a refund.

I come from an old-fashioned family, and I realize that much of my education came from a parent's hand or belt applied to my backside. I felt the same formula applied to Tracy.

But I was a coward as a child — and Tracy Ann simply isn't. She is built like a truck and the infliction of physical punishment generally makes her only more stubborn. We have found that the most effective form of punishment with her is to withhold our usual praise.

her good conduct ribbon as a flag. Any real criticism brings her to tears, and it is so unfair to a child that I do not have the heart to use it often.

I love the idea of freedom so much that I truly hate to scratch at a flea, realizing as I do, each living thing is entitled to its empire.

The only times I ever sweat Tracy hard is when she climbs into the window area — we live on the 8th floor — or when she starts into the street without holding my hand.

She has been told not to do these things. She has been told the reason why: That to climb into the window area and lean out too far... to adventure into the street by herself... might cause us to lose her, and that without her life could never be the same again for her father and mother.

The odd thing, I have found is that when I pummel her behind real hard out of blind panic because she has violated the laws of her personal safety she will weep but little, and come and cling to the palm swing against her. She knows why.

But if, jokingly, I raise my hand threateningly over a minor infraction of our family rules she will stand there, a baby tigers at bay, and say, "You can't spank me. Sure enough I can't."

Generally speaking, I have found that in dealing with a daughter almost 3 years old — particularly in solving such topics as, "Don't make your poor old mother pick up all those toys," or, "if you really don't want this breakfast, please let me scrape it off your face" — it is better to abstain from a firm palm and hope for the best from a heart-to-heart talk.

At least when a woman is approaching the age of 3 she'll hear you through.

TAX RETURNS CHECKED

Last year one of every 40 returns was checked. The odds will be less than that this year, and for taxpayers who are business or professional people or who have income of $10,000 or more the chance of an audit is multiplied several times the average, Williams said.

Gantz accused Miller of incompetency and said the fact that Miller was a candidate for Congress had nothing to do with his recommendation to the board.

Miller, 33, would not say what form his legal action against the board would take. He said his rating as a teacher last year was excellent.

THE RIGHT TO KNOW

Ike Improves Relations With Press

By KENT COOPER
By North American Newspaper Alliance

No wonder then that, wherever newspapermen gather, a topic of conversation is sure to be outright news suppression and the tantalizing practice of giving news "off the record." Washington newsmen were worried in the 1952 presidential campaign about how much worse it was going to be with a general in the White House. The military during the war became addicted to "briefing" sessions at which reporters were let in on all sorts of secrets but told not to print them. It was a useful and needed type of relationship during the war for giving the news, when it was released, an accurate background.

Because of the earnest desire on the part of newsmen not to endanger the troops with any violation of security, there was never any complaint about briefing. However, when the practice did not die with the war, when, in fact, it spread to many departments and became fairly general in Washington, there was speculation about what the attitude of the supreme commander would be if he were elected president.

THE PRECEDENT of regular press conferences set by Roosevelt and Truman had contributed something to authoritative reporting from Washington, not much that was new but clarification of what had been published. They contributed to putting speculative writing in the gossip columns where it belonged.

Reporters who covered Gen. Eisenhower during the war said immediately after the general was nominated that, if elected, he would arrange formal briefing sessions with reporters whenever he had something to announce, rather than maintaining a set schedule of press conferences as did his two immediate predecessors.

That was more or less the way he started. Yet he later furnished an example of how a military man's attitude toward the people and their press can change when he finds himself dealing with civilians who in peacetime are his bosses, which they are not when in war he stands astride the channels of news and can censor not only all avenues of information that exist to keep the people informed but can initiate court martial against any accredited and accepted news writer who contravenes his orders of suppression.

THE PRESIDENT'S press conference has become a Washington institution. It is in fact no conference at all but a period in which the press can address questions to the president in his presence and in which, if he feels the answers to be in the public interest, he will make them for publication. What happened in the case of President Eisenhower is an example of the education of a highly placed individual in the attitude he should have toward the public through its servants, the newspapers.

The development of that attitude was commented upon in an editorial in The New York Times in the summer of 1954. It disclosed that, some 16 months after he was inaugurated, the President permitted his privately and frank and congenial personality to become his official character in his relations with the press.

THE NEW YORK TIMES said: There are many things a president can't learn until after he takes the oath of office. One of them is how to conduct a news conference. Mr. Eisenhower was not at his best in his early White House meetings with the press. He was, if one may say that of a general and a president, a little embarrassed. He didn't know quite how to handle the eager gentlemen, plus a few equally eager ladies, who were there for the purpose of getting printable copy and who sometimes didn't mind embarrassing him a little if that were the way to get the copy.

Now, however, he is developing a skill that wins the admiration of many journalists. He seems also to realize that the press is on the whole well meaning and full of good will. On Wednesday the President dealt with a list of subjects long enough almost to fill a newspaper.

Anybody sitting down with a group of friends after dinner might run through as many subjects as these or perhaps more, but when a president meets with his group of friends known collectively as the White House correspondents what he says gets into the papers. That would worry almost anybody. But Mr. Eisenhower seems far less worried than he used to be. He authorizes far more direct quotation that has been customary with him or was customary with his two predecessors. He seems to realize that the press, including the radio, is one of the institutions through which the government functions, even though it is not mentioned as such in the Constitution. And this is fine for all concerned, including Mr. Eisenhower, the reporters and most of all the general public, which pays the bills and therefore has a natural interest in what is going on.

IT HAD TAKEN longer than usual for this transformation to occur simply because Mr. Eisenhower was saturated with the military idea that the public should be neither inquisitive nor informed except through censorship. But when the transition occurred it was a graceful one.

It was graceful because of the innate character of the man in his private relations with newsmen. He is in reality an extrovert. From the time of his speech of acceptance at Abilene, no presidential candidate ever was less formal with the correspondents. On his special campaign trains he would drop into the press lounge car, sit down for a beer and begin talking.

He was either so naive in his new role or so much at ease in his companionship with reporters that he did not seem to realize what he was saying to them with confidential informality was hot news. There were 50 or 60 of them itching to send it out for publication. They did not do so. Yet they knew that what he was saying to them he probably would also be saying to politicians with whom he came in contact and who would repeat it, if for no other reason than to show how close they were to their future president and in what great confidence he held them.

THERE WERE such items as his statement that vice-presidential candidate Nixon "would have to come clean as a hound's tooth to stay on the ticket"; that the general had changed his mind about revealing his financial position, though he quickly changed it back again; that even as early as then he did not agree with Sen. Knowland that we should break relations with Russia.

What, in the circumstances, could reporters in the lounge car do? If they walked out and said they wouldn't be bound to off-the-record restrictions, they would be absent if the general lifted restrictions at the reporters' request, as sometimes happened, though rarely. Perplexed and fearful, the correspondents saw the scene shift to the White House where, at first, except that some question were allowed and answered, the press conference developed much as they expected it would, with no fixed regularity. They didn't like it, but they liked the man personally and he liked most of them. So it was good advice that "Ike should relax" which brought the change.

Models 'Melt' in Air Friction Tests

A graphic illustration of the effect of ultrahigh temperatures caused by the friction of air on a supersonic airplane is shown in these photographs. Engineers at Northrop Aircraft's Hawthorne, Calif., plant are searching for new metals and alloys capable of withstanding the heat of the "thermal barrier." They subject facsimiles of various materials to intense heat. Infrared quartz lamps, generating temperatures as high as 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit, are used in the tests.

THE SMALL cut-out plane is about to be given the heat treatment. This airplane facsimile is made of standard aircraft skin material—aluminum alloy.

FOUR SECONDS after the switch is thrown in the thermal test laboratory, the model plane begins to "melt." Stainless steel used in some applications can withstand temperatures up to 3000 degrees Fahrenheit.

LIMP AS a dishrag, the model plane hangs on its supporting frame just seven and one half seconds after the current was turned on. Tests like these will help engineers in their search for heat resistant metals.

Ohio Police Officials, Judges Give Ideas On How State Could Weed Out Unfit Drivers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — How would you go about weeding out unfit drivers? Ohio's nine million residents. It will save a lot of them from getting killed. Ohio's still-new department of highway safety, working under the leadership of Director U.C. Felty, is hard at work on the double-barreled problem of:

The replies, generally, contain suggestions which fit into six principal groups:

1. Use present laws to their fullest.
2. Require serious traffic law violators and those at fault in accidents to undergo new driver examinations.
3. Do a more careful job of screening applicants for license renewals to spot the obviously unfit.
4. Give special attention to older applicants for licenses for signs of senility and failing eyesight.
5. Give judges broader power to suspend licenses in cases where a history of repeated offenses indicates unfitness to drive.
6. Require periodic re-examination of drivers.

And, as one judge commented: "Most of the cases I get aren't unfit. They're just full of liquor."

Middletown Police Chief Joseph Blackmore favors a written driving and physical test every time a license is renewed "since physical ability to drive may decline in the years following an initial check."

Municipal Court Judge J. T. Lamb of Middletown reports he watches violators brought before him for signs of disability and recommends a re-examination if the signs are present. Judges must take this responsibility, he points out, in the absence of any re-examination law.

Toledo's police inspector, Frank Baumgartner, feels psychological tests for drivers would be "the most important weeding out process that could be applied . . . to find out those who are mentally stable and unfit to drive." He says this is more important than discovering minor physical defects.

Cleveland Police Chief Frank Story believes the state should require a re-examination of drivers shown to have physical or mental disability or those who have been arrested repeatedly for drunk driving.

Cincinnati Safety Director Orris Hamilton says: "Two types of drivers are a menace: Those physically incapable and those who are habitual law violators. In both cases their licenses should be suspended permanently."

The highway safety bureau chief in the Queen City, Lt. Arthur Mehring, believes: "Along with the regular license examination, a test should be made for emotional stability. Unfit drivers also should be made to undergo these exams."

Cincinnati Municipal Court Judge John W. Keefer: "Drivers aged 65 and over should be given a complete license examination annually . . . Present laws, properly enforced, afford sufficient means to eliminate unsafe motorists."

Judge Daniel C. Handley of the same court: "All traffic violators should be tested for physical deficiencies and to see if they know the rules of the road. Licenses should be revoked until corrections are made or driving rules are learned. There are too many driving signs. You can't read all of them and keep your eyes on the road. Speed signs are not prominently situated in some areas. School zones should be better marked."

Municipal Court Judge Ben J. Goldman of Springfield: "I would require or request of courts that they refer for re-examination every traffic violator where circumstances (of) . . . the violation suggests the driver is unfamiliar with laws and rules . . . or where he displays such a complete lack of judgment as to indicate his general unfitness to drive. This would be in addition to such other referrals . . . where obvious physical or mental incapacity is manifest."

Dayton Police Chief Paul J. Price: "It is my belief there should be a complete examination before issuance of a license. By complete, I mean motorists should undergo a physical and mental examination as well as a test for driving ability." Chief Price said Dayton police have been conducting a driver weeding out program for several years on a limited scale. Particular attention is paid motorists involved in accidents as the result of epileptic seizures, senility and so-called blackouts.

Springfield Police Chief Lawrence A. Abbott: "The difficulty is that not all law enforcement officers take advantage of the right to refer to the bureau of motor vehicles for re-examination the drivers who may not be qualified physically, mentally or emotionally to drive. We have weeded out a considerable number in Springfield through this process. Instead of wanting to take advantage of this program, too many law officers want to be good fellows."

Columbus Municipal Judges Wilbur L. Shull and J. Dean Strausbaugh, Police Chief George W. Scholer and Police Capt. B. P. Smith were unanimous in calling for suspension of the recess operator's driving rights. Judge Shull and Chief Scholer specifically mentioned a driver demerit point system.

Alliance traffic authorities believe more care by clerks in renewing licenses would remove many unfit motorists from the highways. In short, say Municipal Judge Harry S. Wyckoff and Police Chief A. O. Lower, the state should make better use of the tools it now has.

"In some places," Lower says, "they issue renewals like running sheep through slaughter. A little more investigation by the state of those drivers in question would solve 99 per cent of the problem."

Warren Municipal Judge James A. Ravella and Police Chief Manley R. English agree present law is sufficient to eliminate most unfit drivers. And both were inclined to believe aged or otherwise physically subnormal drivers are as big—or bigger—problem than reckless drivers.

For nearly a decade, Warren has maintained an up-to-date file on accidents, their causes, the drivers at fault as well as recording the history of traffic offenders. "And these files prove," says Chief English, "that we get the same drivers committing offenses over and over through the years."

Canton officials — Municipal Judge D. L. McCarroll, Safety Director Stanley Cimich, Police Chief James B. Quilligan and Traffic Capt. Joseph R. Scrimo—unanimously oppose mass re-examination. Said Judge McCarroll: "In cases where court record has suspended driving rights, the offender as part of his penalty should be subjected to a driving test." Repeat offenders or those involved in aggravated cases, he suggested further, should be re-examined.

Capt. Scrimo said his department would be quick to back up any statewide program, but he said he felt the state will have to make the difficult decision as to who is fit and who is unfit to drive.

Van Wert Police Chief M. L. Kennedy: "I suggest it be made more difficult to obtain a driver's license. Drivers should be required to pass physical, written and driver tests periodically, more frequently as the drivers grow old."

Chillicothe Municipal Judge Walter M. Shea and Police Chief A. R. Poole agree one of the best ways to weed out the unfit would be "stiffer operator's license suspensions for violators." They favor a law change to provide "a mandatory license suspension for minor violations such as speeding and stop signs." Both believe a point system on violations eventually would eliminate bad drivers if, after an accumulation of points, an operator's license was revoked for life.

Washington Court House Municipal Judge Max Dice: "There's going to have to be something, but I'm not at all sure what. Perhaps re-examination after an accident, or at the discretion of local authorities, would be the answer. Also, they might keep a closer watch over the renewals. Perhaps we can do something at renewal time. Possibly the renewer could be empowered to demand a re-examination at his discretion."

Judge Bernard J. Hawk of Sandusky County Common Pleas Court, Fremont, is opposed to so-called "mass" driver examinations. He said in smaller communities like Fremont, Clyde, Gibsonburg and Woodville in Sandusky County, police departments generally know of many drivers who
